Tiger Parenting is a term which refers to strict or demanding parents who push their children to be successful academically by attaining high levels of scholastic and academic achievement, sometimes to the detriment of the child's social, psychological and emotional well-being.

Debate Motion 1:

This house, as an immigrant parent, would raise their children using the Tiger Parenting model.

Debate Motion 2:

This house, as a state with aging population, would opt for policies that increase immigration (e.g. more visas, more social benefits to work migrants) rather than ones that encourage citizens to have more children (e.g. tax benefits, increased childcare)

Debate Motion 3:

This house believes that first generation immigrants should raise their children to fully integrate into their new country, and completely abandon attempts to establish links to their country of origin
